

Dental Award To Dr. Woods

Dr. Edward Woods of Cohasset has been awarded a Fellowship by the American Academy of General Dentistry. The Academy is a professional organization of 23,000 family dentists that stresses the vital role of continuing education in guaranteeing the quality of dental care delivered to the public.

Dr. Woods is one of 26 New England dentists so honored in 1979. Unlike other awards granted by the dental profession which are essentially honorary, Fellowship in the American Academy represents a significant commitment. One must complete a minimum of 500 credit hours of graduate study in a diverse curriculum over a 10 year period. Dr. Woods has participated in over 700 hours of graduate courses representing a broad spectrum of dental health problems, patient education, and advanced training.

An associate in Oral Surgery at University Hospital in Boston, a Fellow of the Society of Oral Physiology and Occlusion in New York, Dr. Woods also participates as an Educational Associate in the Tufts University Dental Extern Program whereby senior dental students spend a continuous week in private dental offices learning daily patient care and the management of a private office. From 1960 to 1965, he represented the South Shore Dental Society in oral health matters on the Massachusetts Dental Society level.

After receiving his Bachelor's degree in Biology from Bowdoin College in 1943 and spending three years with the United States Army in Europe, he obtained his Dental degree from Tufts University in 1950. A year's internship in Oral Surgery at the Hartford Hospital followed. He has maintained a general dental practice in Cohasset for the past 25 years.

Dr. Woods served as Secretary of the Cohasset Conservation Commission for 10 years and was a member of the committee speaking for Cohasset in the acquisition of the Wompatuck State Park area from the Federal government. He has played an active role with Cohasset Scout Troop 28 for 10 years.
